

DECISION FATIGUE BLUEPRINT

The 3 Friction Traps Killing Your Daily Output

Burnout isn't caused by working 12 hours a day.
It's caused by making 40 micro-decisions before 10 AM.

The Frictionless Operator Framework

How elite founders and operators eliminate cognitive drag in 15 minutes.

THE PROBLEM

The Morning Decision Spiral

Sitting at your desk at 9 AM asking: "What should I work on today?" drains up to 30% of your executive focus before noon.

Why it destroys focus:

Your willpower battery is full in the morning. Burning it on prioritizing your task list leaves zero creative stamina for actual execution.

THE FIX

The 5 PM Shutdown Ritual

Tomorrow's first 90 minutes must be pre-decided at 5 PM yesterday.

The 3-Step Shutdown Checklist:

1. Commit to your #1 needle-moving priority.
2. Clear tabs to zero.
3. Close laptop. Morning starts directly with execution.

THE PROBLEM

Open Mental Loops

An unread email, unfiled Slack, or half-finished task doesn't just sit in your inbox.

The Cognitive Leaks:

Unresolved loops rent permanent background space in your working memory, creating constant subconscious mental drag throughout your day.

THE FIX

The 2–Minute Rule + Calendar Vault

Never allow a task to linger in mental limbo.

The Elimination Rule:

- Takes under 2 minutes? Execute and kill it immediately.
- Takes longer than 2 minutes? Lock it into a specific calendar block tomorrow.

SYSTEMIZATION

Reinventing Routine Tasks

Don't reinvent the wheel every Monday. When a repeatable task is documented into an SOP, your brain operates on autopilot.

Preserve Creative Power

Document every weekly task into a 3-step checklist. Save your creative energy for strategic breakthroughs that drive real revenue.
